ETNA FURNACE.

PORTABLE AND BRICK SET.
SIX SIZES—Nos. 2, 3, 3½, 4, 4½ and 5.
Gas Tight. Self Clearing.
A Powerful Heater. Economical of Fuel and Very Durable.

The above cut represents our new Etna Furnace with all the modern improvements. The Fire Pot is made extra heavy and durable. The Body and Radiator are made very heavy. The upper and lower Double Cup Joints allow for free contraction and expansion, and are perfectly gas tight. The Ash Flue is the same as in the Kohler Furnace. When the grate is shaken or old coal sifted, all flying ashes which usually escape into the cellar are drawn up on cartridge way. It has the Kohler Water Pans which consist of two tanks, inner and outer, connected with brass pipe, both filled by pouring into the outer. The Coal Grate and sliding arrangement are perfect. The self cleaning Radiator and the self Packing of the joints are very strong points in its favor over all other furnaces. A very important feature of this Furnace is the small number of joints, their position and construction, making them perfectly gas tight. The form of the castings is such that they will not crack and are made thicker than those of other furnaces. This furnace can be set in low cellars and is suited to all classes of public and private buildings. It has been thoroughly tested and will last longer than any ever in the furnace trade. The No. 4½ and No. 5 Etnas are especially intended for Churches, School Houses and Public Buildings, and at the low price we put them are the best and cheapest Furnace in the market.

AN OPEN LETTER
—FROM—
W. F. SHAW,
—TO—
HIS PATRONS AND THE PUBLIC.

The undersigned, dealer in Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Gloves, Umbrellas, etc., etc., at NO. 20 MAIN STREET, would most respectfully announce to his patrons and the public generally, that on and after July 1st the credit system at his establishment will [illegible] no sales will be made except [illegible] without having [illegible]
This new departure [illegible] been carefully con[sidered, and the] undersigned is aware that several [of his cu]stomers who are persons of means [are] as good as the gold, may prob[ably be offen]ded, yet a little reflection will con[vince them th]at they will be benefitted by the c[hange] and honest determ[ination of the] undersigned to give to his custome[rs go]ods at the lowest possible prices. T[his can] be accomplished by the adoption of a [cash system;] the salaries of book-k[eepers,] collections are saved [and] the cash in hand, [ad]vantage of the mark[et] which will benefit [the customer] be greatly reduce[d.] He will not then as now be obliged to carry on his books a large amount of indebtedness, concerning which, of course, the [undersigned] and some of which cannot be c[ollected, and] cost the undersigned [a] painful [loss,] credit to his true and tried frie[nds] once adopted, must be rigidly [adhered to. He sin]cerely believes that every [customer will] approve of his course, and does [not doubt that] his patrons may see that the [new] system must be mutually be[neficial.] desires to assure his customers, [that] they will ever receive the most [courteous treat]ment, and pledges them that [they will receive] the full benefit arising from the [cash system,] feeling to them better bargains t[han it is pos]sible to obtain under any other system of conducting business.
Goods may be returned if not satisfactory, and the money will be cheerfully refunded.
Thanking his patrons for past favors and soliciting a continuance of the same, the undersigned is, very respectfully, the public's obedient servant,
W. F. SHAW.

The Cup that Cheers but not Inebriates.
Since water has become the fashionable drink in Maine, numerous springs of this excellent beverage have been brought into notice, and some of our Maine springs are achieving a national reputation. Of one of these, the Lake Auburn, the Lowell Daily Courier speaks in complimentary terms. The Courier says: A great many people do not quite like Merrimac river water as a beverage. Most of our wells are even worse than the river. What can be substituted? The Lake Auburn Mineral Spring Company has just started a big trade in its water, which is an admirable beverage, and if one simply uses it for drinking purposes the cost is trifling. Most people have an idea that a "mineral spring" water must have a peculiar taste—that it must have what Mr. Weller called "a smack of warm flatirons about it," or some vile salty or alkaline taste. This is not so. Lake Auburn water is tasteless, colorless, pure, sparkling water. It has medicinal qualities, but they consist in its purity as much as anything. An absolutely pure water, nearly free from organic matter, and possessing only certain qualities which the taste does not discover, it is quite as efficacious in purifying the system as some water which "smells to heaven," and can be drank only by holding the nose. Such a water is not for use as a beverage; it is to be taken like other nauseous doses, as a medicine. Lake Auburn water is to all appearance and taste not only the purest, softest and most agreeable spring water, but it is said to act wonderfully on systems polluted by impure blood, or deranged in their organic functions. Twenty barrels of the water have lately been sold in Lowell, and it is coming into very general use.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.
The Journal says that the owners of the burned buildings on Main street, Lewiston, have not reached any decision about re-building, and will not make any more until the new mill question is decided. The site for the proposed new mill is all clear, now. If there is a prospect that they will have to remove in the spring, the burned out people will not rebuild this fall.

Cumberland.
The Argus says that a young man named Reed, employed as an engineer at Yarmouth, but whose family consisting of a wife and two children, live in Portland, has been missing for about a week. It is thought he has left for good, though why he should thus cruelly desert an amiable wife and two remarkably bright and prepossessing children, is a hard thing to explain. The family are left destitute and but for kind friends who have taken them into their house, their situation would be indeed distressing.
Two sunstrokes were reported in Portland, Thursday, John Holway and a Mr. Toole.
The Press says that Joe Matthews, a telegraph messenger boy, of Portland, rescued five boys from drowning, Thursday. They went in an old boat out to Back Cove. Their boat swamped.

Knox.
In the Pease murder case, where Frank C. Pease murdered his wife in Boston, and then attempted suicide, the Press says: A dispatch from Rockland, where the couple lived until a short time ago, states that Frank C. Pease comes of an excellent family. His father, Lorenzo C. Pease, was a native of Appleton, but was a successful merchant in Rockland for many years. He died fifteen years ago, leaving considerable property. Frank, when he attained his majority, had $7,000 paid to him as his share. He had been well educated, and was a fair scholar. He has been dissipated from his early youth, but still keeps about all his property. He drank, but spent but little money, and in gambling he was very successful and kept even at least. In June, 1879, he married Ellen Clark, daughter of Thomas A. Clark, known as "the frog." The girl's family are disreputable, her father, mother and brothers being frequently before the police courts. The girl was quiet and apparently well-behaved up to the time of her marriage. Since that they have quarrelled, and both have acted badly in every way. They have one child, over a year old, which is cared for by Mrs. Meservy, a sister of the mother's. He came to Boston first, deserting his wife, and she ascertaining where he was, sold her household goods and followed him. A week or two ago the couple visited Rockland. Mr. Clark, the father of the murdered woman, left Rockland, Wednesday night for Boston, on the steamer Katahdin, to get his daughter's remains. At the hospital, Wednesday, the condition of Pease was somewhat improved. He was conscious, but refused to talk about the tragedy. It cannot yet be stated whether his wounds will prove mortal, but his recovery is still extremely doubtful.

Oxford.
A correspondent writes to the Lewiston Journal: Gilead is a very pretty place to make a place, and that isn't saying it is not much of a place now, for it is the centre of quite a business. There are two stores there, a steam mill in a shanty. It grew out of an old one burned a few weeks ago; but when Bennett gets round to it he will plant a better one. The first object the traveller sees is their beautiful little church built two years ago. Mr. Williams, late of Bangor Seminary, occupies the pulpit. Among the substantial men and good farmers of Gilead are Mr. James French, E. B. Bennett, Esq., who has as good an acre of wheat, probably, as there is in the county, B. S. Burbank, Esq., Mr. Eli T. Peabody and many others. Some forty years ago Dea. Eliphlet Burbank raised the first house in town without liquor. His neighbors said it couldn't be done, but the Deacon said it could, and it was.

Washington.
The Sentinel says that Mr. Alonzo Adams, who has been engaged in running sardines from Deer Island to Eastport in a sail boat, was drowned at the former place on Monday morning, Aug. 29th. Mr. Adams was in the act of hoisting his sail, when the halyards parted and he fell backwards into the water.

York.
Another robbery occurred near York Beach, on Tuesday. When two ladies were driving in a buggy from So. Berwick to the Beach by way of Eliot, they were sprung upon by a man who came out of the woods pointing a pistol, and robbed them of their jewelry and two silk dresses. The culprit then disappeared. Shortly after the robber offered to sell those dresses to a gentleman passing along the same road.

A DEFENSE OF COLLEGE BOYS.
The college student spends over his books, either really or nominally, the years which his out-of-college contemporaries spend in learning some trade or business. He comes home, after having been supported for eight years or so, to find his old mates all self-supporting and well planted on their feet in this practical world. And yet in a comparatively short time he too begins to support himself in the same practical world to which he has been a stranger, and he puts his education to its final test by making a success with it. As a rule college graduates succeed. When a man is a failure, if he is a college graduate the fact is always mentioned. It is the remarkable part of it.
If the colleges are training schools for life, and if their graduates succeed in life, there is no call to abuse the students. It is time the cheap talk of that character ended. The average student does not waste his opportunities nor live a free and easy and regardless life. He studies and works. If he didn't he would be dropped. It is no easy matter to keep along with one's class and meet the examination ordeals.
In the growth of society in wealth it follows that our colleges have more rich students in them than formerly, and that the average of college life is lifted to a more expensive plane. But this does not in any way directly affect the cost of getting a college education for any one person. Drummers for little back country colleges take the statistics of the average amount spent by each of a Yale or Harvard class of these days, and go about howling over the awful cost of getting an education,

"The average cost of four years at Yale College is $6,000," and similar paragraphs are floating about on the sea of exchanges and will never entirely sink. They mean nothing. They represent a use of statistics that is entirely erroneous, a blunder if not a wilful perversion. No one is compelled to spend the sum named because it is the average. If the spendthrifts are all the time growing the plentier in our colleges they do not prevent other students from working as economically as ever. Indeed with the increase of scholarships and of funds we incline to believe that an education can be got cheaper to-day than ever before in these very institutions of high average expense.
So long as boys do not spend more than they have a right to it is nobody's business, and if, after their studies, they succeed, then their college work has been a good one. Holding them up to the public representative idlers, wasters of opportunity—a shiftless, indolent and unprofitable lot—is all wrong. It does no good to any-body and is liable to do serious mischief.—Hartford Courant.

HAD TO MAKE A SPEECH.—Reporters as a rule are persevering men, and like to give good value for their services. A good story is told of Lord Palmerston's experience of importunate reporters. A London scribe having heard that his Lordship was to be present at an archery meeting in a small country village in Hampshire, posted down to the place and attended the meeting. Lord Palmerston's task was to distribute prizes to some half-dozen blushing young ladies, and the whole company present did not number much above a score. His Lordship performed the task with his customary grace and good humor, giving the young ladies a kindly pat on the head, but making only the most commonplace observations. The reporter waited anxiously in his place until, to his horror, he saw the proceedings brought to a close without any formal speech from the Premier. This was more than he could stand. He rushed from his corner to the noble Lord, who was passing out of the room. "My Lord, I beg your pardon, but really this won't do!" "What do you mean?" was the reply of the astonished statesman. "Why, you've made no speech! I've come all the way from London to report it, and I must have a speech of some sort." Whereupon, it is on record that the good-tempered old gentleman turned back, and detained the retreating audience for 20 minutes, while he gave them a genial dissertation on the good qualities of English-women in general, and of Hampshire lasses in particular.—Chambers's Journal.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:
The undersigned, administrator of the estate of Emily Palmer, late of Bradford, in said County, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay her just debts and charges of administration.
Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant him power to sell by license, at public or private sale, and convey the whole of the following described real estate of the deceased, (including the reversion of the widower's right by courtesy therein), as the residue would be greatly depreciated by a sale of any portion, viz:
The late homestead of said deceased, of about 100 acres, with buildings thereon, and a mill and privilege, all situated in said Bradford, to satisfy said debts, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

THE QUESTION OF EXECUTIVE "INABILITY."

There seems to us to be a great deal of common sense in the following reported remarks of Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts: "With very few exceptions the executive duties are performed by the heads of departments or the subordinate officers, and not by the President in person. His constitutional control over them is exercised through his power of appointment and removal. There is no reason known to the public why the government cannot go on for the next three months without any serious inconvenience arising from President Garfield's sickness. The whole American people eagerly desire his recovery. The press and all patriotic citizens ought to abstain from raising or discussing doubtful questions of this kind. Their discussion can only distress the President when he recovers far enough to be informed of it, and so delay his full restoration to health. I do not think the framers of the constitution meant that a temporary illness, however severe, should constitute such an inability as would warrant the Vice-President in taking possession of the office."

In the same interview Senator Hoar also emphatically dissents from the idea recently advanced that it devolves upon the Vice President to decide when there is a "disability" within the meaning of the Constitution, and that, having decided that a "disability" exists, he should at once assume the office of President. He says such a course, if permitted, would be fraught with the greatest perils. Suppose, for instance, that, after a Vice President had taken into his own hands the reins of government, the President should recover his health, and proceed to declare that the disability had ceased. If the Vice President should refuse to give up the office, on the ground that the President had not really recovered, who would decide between them?

Hon. Leonard Swett, of Chicago, a former law partner of Abraham Lincoln, deprecates the raising of the question at all while the President's life is hanging in the balance, and he very tersely disposes of the theory that the Vice-President should decide on his own promotion, by saying: "I am very clear in my impression that the Vice-President himself should not determine it. I have no idea that every time the President has a sore thumb the Vice-President should pop up and dispute his authority."

A LESSON FROM A DISASTER.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The first of September has come to be recognized as the day when the fashionable vacation properly terminates, and although autumn opens with more than midsummer drouth and fervor the homeward rush of pleasure seekers for the next fortnight will overcrowd every line of public travel. Already the throngs at railroad stations and steamboat landings are crushing, and the unusual perils which threaten the thousands who are hurrying home is a reasonable if not a pleasant subject for reflection. The accident which befel the steamer State of New York on Sunday evening, and which has been cheerfully spoken of as a most fortunate occurrence because a hundred persons escaped strangling, is most suggestive in this connection. According to the press reports the boat was slowly dropping down the placid river, her engines having been stopped, when she struck a stump or sunken log, and in ten minutes she had filled with water to the floor of the ladies' cabin. One of her regular landings was at hand, but her officers wisely stranded her, for she would have sunk at her dock before the passengers could have left her. If there had been no friendly beach at hand, if the wreck had come later in the evening, after the passengers had retired, if a floating wreck in the open Sound had been the object struck instead of a river snag, the results would have been appalling.

Now a boat constructed with water-tight compartments will not founder, even after a hole has been drilled through her bottom, before the passengers have time to gather their senses and say their prayers. And if a loaded hull without these compartments is bound to sink like an iron pot when it is punctured, no boat without these compartments should be allowed to carry men and women. But is it possible that a staunch boat, moving slowly and striking such an obstacle as the State of New York floated against, would be torn open so as to receive such a flood of water? Are sound oak timbers crushed so easily? Perhaps they are. But there is an impression along the Connecticut River that these boats are none too seaworthy. This impression may be incorrect, but it is based on the current talk of the employes of the line and the men who habitually use it or care to use it. Even the repairing is suspected of being insincerely or at least not thoroughly done, and it is feared that paint and putty hide much that is weak and rotten. The stranded steamer has been counted the safest craft which sails the river, but if her companions can be crushed into sudden sinking by a less violent blow than she received, they are good boats to avoid. The popular estimate may be incorrect, however, and it is to be hoped that the owners of these craft will take pains to prove that it is so.

We do not know that the hull of this ill-starred boat was shaky or unsound. We only know, as everybody else knows, the havoc made by the sunken tree. But some facts have been brought to our notice which seem to demand investigation. As the steamer lies, her sinking stern is straining her amidships; and her hog frames are split and fractured. Yesterday a gentleman was examining these huge timbers, which look so smooth and white and strong. He thrust his arm into the fracture, and easily loosened handfuls of decayed wood. Several of these pieces have been sent to this office, and there is not a fibre or splinter of sound wood in them. They are shapeless lumps of dry rottenness which can be rubbed into powder between the thumb and finger. Now the disaster did not result from the treacherous timbers above, but when the beams which are meant to stiffen and strengthen the entire structure are only varnished shams, it is in order to examine the timbers under water which were crushed like an egg shell. Of course it is to be hoped that the hull will be found honestly built, and staunch enough to wrestle with the rough waters of the Sound. But as life is sacred, a searching survey should be made before this accident is pronounced a visitation of God. The hundreds who are crowding these boats every day and every night, and all their friends, have a vital interest in this matter, and it is an opportune moment for everybody to insist that Government Inspectors shall inspect.

THE FIRST MAINE CAVALRY.

REUNION AT DOVER AND FOXCROFT.

Honors to the Memory of Col. Douty.

Presentation and Memorial Exercises.

One of the most interesting of the military events of the year was the gathering of more than one hundred veterans of the glorious First Maine Cavalry at Dover and Foxcroft on Wednesday last, for their annual reunion and to pay their tribute of affectionate remembrance at the grave of their gallant leader, Col. Calvin S. Douty, who fell in the fatal charge at Aldie.

Mayo's Hall was decorated and thrown open as headquarters for the veterans who arrived in large numbers during the forenoon, and they were hospitably cared for by the local committee and the citizens generally.

At 1.30 P. M., the cavalry-men, wearing their yellow badges, led by Gen. J. P. Cilley and Douty Post, G. A. R., under command of W. Cushing, marched with Dyer's Band to the Academy grounds in Foxcroft, where they formed a hollow square for the presentation of a portrait of Col. Douty by his widow to the Post which bears his name. The estimable lady was escorted to the centre by Col. J. B. Peaks, who in her behalf presented the large and handsomely framed, life-size crayon portrait drawn by Miss Nellie Mann, of this city, and pronounced a very fine likeness. In tendering the gift Col. Peaks spoke feelingly as follows:

Comrades of Douty Post:

In behalf of Mrs. Douty I am here to present you the likeness of the officer whose name your Post bears—Col. Calvin S. Douty. I can assure you that it is exceedingly gratifying to Mrs. Douty that those brave men who fought for the Nation's life, now residing in this community, have seen fit to associate themselves into a Post of the Grand Army, and, to honor the name of her late husband by naming it Post Douty.

And it is especially pleasant for Mrs. Douty to present you with this memento on an occasion when so many of the comrades of the 1st Maine Cavalry have gathered from all parts of the State, aye, from all parts of New England, to honor the memory of him whose mortal part lies beneath the sod in yonder cemetery.

Comrades, no woman in this broad land made greater sacrifice for her country than did Mrs. Douty; but I am requested by her to say that the many manifestations of respect which have been shown on the part of his comrades, and especially the comrades of this Post, to the memory of Colonel Douty, have been exceedingly pleasant to her, and have assisted in reconciling herself to her great affliction; and she presents to you this likeness as a slight token of her love for you all.

The portrait was accepted on behalf of the Post in the following eloquent words of

HON. E. A. THOMPSON.

In accepting this beautiful gift, this Post desires me to extend through you to the donor, their heartfelt thanks for this renewed remembrance of Douty Post.

We feel proud of the name that we bear, because it was the name of one of our most honored citizens, and because it is the synonym of honor, loyalty and bravery. We remember some twenty years ago, when the life of our noble country was in danger, and when our martyred President appealed to the loyalty of the North, that Calvin S. Douty, then in the prime of his manhood, surrounded by all that makes home happy, blest with a noble wife and lovely children, freely offered his services, leaving all he held dear, fully realizing the risks and dangers, and went forth cheerfully to fight the battles of his country. We remember when death cast its shadow across that happy home, once and again removing loved ones; when it seemed as though all his hopes were to be crushed, how he manfully returned to his duty, and there remained with his noble regiment until the sacrifice of his life was demanded.

All of these things are as familiar to us as household words. To-day his old comrades in arms, come from the East and the West to grasp each other by the hand in this his native place, and to visit the last resting place of the dead made sacred by his dust. It is useless for me to speak any word of praise for Col. Douty in your presence. You know him as only one comrade can know another. You have seen him in those places that try what stuff men are made of.

You were with him when he poured out his blood to consecrate the soil on which only freemen may tread.

You can love him no more than his friends and neighbors. We yield to none in our desire to do him honor. Such men as Col. Douty never die. Their heroic deeds, unquestioned bravery, and unflinching loyalty, are parts of the history of our country and will be read so long as the deeds of noble men shall be held as worthy of imitation. Neither, Mrs. Douty, can we forget how much you sacrificed. We know not how many sad, lonely hours come to you, but we do know that you have no regrets that your noble husband followed the line of duty and gave his life that his country might live. I assure you that you will find no truer friends than those who with your husband braved the dangers of war. We thank you for this likeness of one we loved, and when the last member of this Post shall alone be hastening to join the noble band of heroes gone before, it shall be his duty to place this gift among the battle flags and mementoes of war at our State Capitol.

AT COL. DOUTY'S GRAVE.

A most impressive scene followed as the veterans filed past one by one to take the hand of the widow of their fallen commander. The procession was then reformed and proceeded, with a large concourse of people, to the Dover Cemetery, where a handsome monument marks the resting place of Col. Douty's honored remains. The people quietly gathered around the monument, Mrs. Douty leaning on the arm of the venerable ex-Vice President Hamlin, and after a solemn dirge by the band, a most beautiful and touching prayer was offered by Rev. C. A. Plummer. Then Gen. J. P. Cilley, of Rockland, who succeeded Col. Douty in command of the regiment, paid an earnest and affectionate tribute to the memory of his gallant chief, and Hon. A. G. Lebroke followed with an eloquent eulogy of the high character and patriotic services of the deceased. The procession then marched back to Mayo's Hall, and the members were dismissed to reassemble at the Camp Ground at 6 P. M.

REGIMENTAL BUSINESS MEETING.

During the afternoon a business meeting of the First Maine Cavalry Association was held and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Serg't. W. B. Smith, of Portland.

Vice-President—Chaplain W. F. Fuller, of Deering.

Recording Secretary—Lieut. Edward Jordan, of Bangor.

Corresponding Secretary—Hospital Steward E. T. Getchell, of Brunswick.

Treasurer—Gen. J. P. Cilley, of Rockland.

It was voted to hold the next annual reunion at Brunswick. Among the officers of the old regiment who attended were Gen. J. P. Cilley, Maj. John D. Myrick, Maj. H. C. Hall, Capt. W. S. Howe, Adjt. Thaddeus Little, Lieuts. O. S. Haskell, E. P. Tobie, H. N. Libbey and E. Jordan, Surgeon Frank Bodfish, Chaplain Fuller and others.

THE BANQUET AND CAMP FIRE.

At 6 P. M. the veterans, accompanied by a large number of citizens of the two towns, assembled in the beautiful grove of the Camp Ground of the Methodist Society, where a most bountiful and excellent banquet was spread upon the tables. After Grace by the Chaplain the refreshments were partaken of, the tables being deftly and pleasantly waited on by young ladies and gentlemen who volunteered for that service. By the time ample justice had been done to the good things of the banquet, the large lanterns had been lighted among the trees and around the speaking stand, and the grove presented quite a striking picture, with the names of the Regiment's battles printed on red and the names of its fallen officers on yellow placards hung about among the trees as follows:

THE ROLL OF HONOR—OFFICERS KILLED.

Colonel Calvin S. Douty.
Lieut.-Colonel Stephen Boothby.
Chaplain Geo. W. Bartlett.

Captains John Heald, Geo. J. Summat, Daniel Sargent, Addison P. Russell, Louis C. Cowan, Waitstill Phillips, Oscar A. Ellis.

Lieutenants Wm. Harris, Eli Parkman, Mark Neville, Chas. K. Johnson, Vincent Mountfort, Geo. Kimball, Eph. H. Taylor, Leander M. Comins, W. S. Collins, James E. Stayner, Wm. H. Bradman.

BATTLES.

Jerusalem Plank Road, King and Queen C. H., Warrenton, Happvertown, Hawes' Shop, Dinwiddie C. H., Aug. 23, 1864 and March 31, 1865, Cacapon, Wyatt's Farm, Strasburg, Amisville, Spottsylvania, White Oak Swamp, Chickahominy River, Bottoms Bridge, Woodstock, Gravelly Road, Defences of Richmond, New Hope Church, Middletown, Ely's Ford, Farmville, Culpepper, Kelley's Ford, Harper's Ferry, Charles City C. The meeting was called to order by Sergeant M. W. Hall, as Toast-Master, and the exercises were opened by a strong and eloquent

ADDRESS BY COL. J. B. PEAKS.

After alluding to the short time since he was notified of his appointment to deliver the regular address of the occasion, he said no attempt at oratory would be indulged in, because soldiers neither expected nor desired it, but gathering here as we do to-day, our first duty was to revive our allegiance to our State and Nation, our loyalty to free Government, and our determination to stand by the flag of our country as the emblem of a united Government and a united people.

The speaker then alluded to the custom of those who took part in the struggle for national life, to meet together to renew the associations of their army life.

He said, they are the survivors of the grandest epoch in the history of the world, and claimed that no other nation or country could produce better examples of pure patriotism, of great heroism and wonderful fortitude, than could be found in the history of the rebellion.

He said the Governments of Europe whose histories were simply histories of wars, have ever been actuated by a desire for power or conquest, and their soldiers influenced by religious zeal or a blind faith in the invincibility of their kings. The crusades, he said, though carried on in the name of religion, and appealing to all the pious instincts of the participants, were still but an effort for the further dominance of the church in the political affairs of the age.

The French Revolution was but an effort to throw off the tyranny of an obnoxious Prince, and from its beginning to its close had not a single brilliant example of patriotism that was not dimmed by the black pall of selfishness, or blind devotion, to Pope or King. Even the war of our own Revolution, he said, was fought to throw off the yoke of a hated King. Hate of tyranny, with its concomitant, the love of liberty, is incentive enough to nerve the heart of man, however sluggish.

But when a people, unaccustomed to war, as were the American people at the breaking out of the rebellion, desiring peace, and dreading the ordeal of battle, with no malice toward their enemy, with no incentive but a desire to uphold free institutions, and to perpetuate for their posterity a free form of Government, when such a people can raise an army of millions, and wage successfully one of the greatest wars of any age, then that people have reached the acme of patriotism, and those who bore their part in the great struggle have a right to feel a pride in it, and those who went down in the strife, deserve the sweetest and tenderest memories of those who survive or come after them.

The speaker then alluded to the soldiers of Napoleon as deserving and receiving the esteem of the world for their devotion to their General, but he said, "Napoleon fought for conquest and for fame; the French soldier fought for Napoleon. We fought for the rights of man to man's own self; for his right to his own body as well as his own soul. It was a struggle for the infinite, divine nature of right, of freedom and of country."

"Such a struggle," said he, "could never have been made for any ordinary object. History gives no example where men have ever been roused into deep, thorough, all pervading effort by any computable prospect of profit and loss, by any visible finite object, but always for some invisible infinite one. It was the boundless, invisible world, that was laid bare in the minds of those early Puritans, and in its burning light the visible shrunk as a scroll; and in these later years, we sacrificed homes, firesides, we sacrificed friends and relatives, blood and treasure, everything visible and finite, that this free Government, founded by our fathers, should not perish."

The speaker then paid an eloquent tribute to the heroism of the Maine regiments in the field during the Rebellion, and gave an exciting descriptive account of the charge of the 1st Maine Cavalry at Brandy Station and said, "Comrades, it has been said of us that no army ever had a better regiment. I can say also without egotism, because I was a private soldier, that no regiment ever had generally better officers."

He then paid a touching tribute to the memory of Col. Douty, Major Boothby, Capt. Summat, and the rest of the gallant officers of the 1st Maine Cavalry who gave their lives for their country.

The speaker said, however, it was not his purpose simply to speak of the bravery and discipline of the army, nor to recapitulate the gallant deeds of his regiment, but to call attention to more weighty and far more interesting considerations. He said that after sixteen years of peace, it was safe to indulge in a retrospect, and to inquire what have been the results of our victory, what its advantages and what of the future.

He then discussed the reconstruction following the war, and, said he did not complain of anything except the attitude of the government towards the late slaves. "But I do complain," said he, "that this great nation with all its wealth and resources, with all its broad acres unoccupied and uncultivated, should strike the chains from four millions of slaves, and leave them to the tender mercies of their former masters. Four millions of people who had been held in slavery by a government, until it was compelled to emancipate them to save its own life, deserved something better of the government than to be turned into the world without a cent of money, or a foot of soil in which to bury the first one who might die."

The speaker then discussed the present social problem of immigration to this country, and said that while he was in favor of it, yet we wanted only such immigrants as were satisfied with our present form of government; that this must be a free country—free for every man to work out his own happiness and his own prosperity—but not an asylum of Communists or Nihilists. "We have a flag," said he, "which is the emblem of national faith, national honor and national honesty. It is the emblem of a people who clung to their government and free institutions through the darkest period ever experienced by any nation or people; and thank God it is the flag of a government which has not broken faith with its creditors, but which has ample resources and full determination to pay every dollar, even the uttermost farthing of what it cost to assert its right to be a nation; and we cannot afford, my comrades and my countrymen to have the luster of our flag dimmed by the reflection that under its folds the criminals of other lands find refuge and protection."

The speaker then alluded to our great sorrow to-day, at the attempted assassination of our President, and said it was not for GARFIELD simply that we mourned, not merely because we feared the death of the man, because as a man merely, he was fit and ready to die; but it was because we feared that the policy he had dictated, would not be carried out in case of his death; and that the desire of his great heart, and the design of his mighty intellect will not be realized.

"But my comrades," said he, "I have faith to believe that into whatever darkness we are led in our present sorrow, whatever we are called upon to endure, or suffer, or sacrifice, that a higher power than man is guiding us." He closed by repeating the well known lines:

"He leads us on by paths
We did not know."

The address occupied about forty minutes; and was received with most cordial manifestations of approval.

The regular toasts were then called and responded to as follows:

TOASTS.

The First Maine Cavalry.

Response by Gen. J. P. Cilley, of Rockland.

The Annual Reunion.

Response by Capt. Wm. S. Howe, of Pittsfield.

Our Fallen Comrades.

Response by Major John D. Myrick, of Augusta.

Col. Calvin S. Douty.

Response by letter from Gen. Chas. H. Smith, of 19th U. S. Infantry.

The Soldier at Home.

Response by Lieut. E. P. Tobie, of Providence, R. I.

The State of Maine.

Response by Maj. Henry C. Hall, of Boston.

The President of the United States.

Response by Hon. Hannibal Hamlin.

The United States Navy.

Response by Capt. C. A. Boutelle.

The following is Col. Smith's letter referred to:

HEADQ'RS NINETEENTH INFANTRY, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 1881.

Comrades:

When, twenty years ago, our country called for defenders, Calvin S. Douty responded to that call in person with all the resolution and energy that so conspicuously characterized the man. In entering upon the untried duties of a soldier, he did not attempt an experiment as such, neither was he allured by novelty, but with all the earnestness of his nature at the very start, he consecrated himself without reserve to his country and his country's battles. He never did anything by the halves. It was not his nature to falter; so when he put on the army uniform it was for victory or death. He never wavered from his fixed purpose and the following incident most forcibly illustrates his inflexible resolution:

One Sunday morning in those dark days after the battle at Chancellorsville, Colonel Douty was sitting in front of his open tent, near Manassas. It was his last Sunday on earth, being the Sunday immediately preceding fatal Aldie. Some of his Field Officers, younger men than himself, were about him in social conversation, when he rather abruptly, but in a pleasant manner, said: "Well, young men, I now warn each of you that you will never get promotion by my resignation. If, therefore, you desire advancement, you must either help get me promoted out of your way, or get me killed."

Those words expressed the unwavering purpose, persistent will, and indomitable spirit of the soldier, the patriot, the man! They were startling words even when he uttered them, but how immeasurably more significant they became a few days later, when he redeemed them with the infinite price of his life. The manner of his death was the natural and fitting climax of his life. I might dwell upon that thrilling scene, for I was one of the first to bend over his body and discover that his spirit had departed. But the story has often been told and is now a part of our country's history. I will therefore pass on.

As for the promotion to which he referred, he was rapidly helping himself to it and stood not in need of the help of others. A strong, confident and dignified man, possessing personal magnetism in a very high degree, his presence and bearing were such as naturally inspire confidence. His superiors therefore charged him with important duties without hesitation, while his inferiors in rank trusted him with confidence akin to that which children repose in parents. He could not pass unnoticed, and promotion was undoubtedly in store for him. Had he lived, he might rank to-day with the distinguished generals of the world.

Such reflections may possibly increase our regrets for his loss. But let us remember that even the greatest misfortunes are wont to afford some compensations. In this case, we see to-day, nearly twenty years after his death, his devoted followers coming from every quarter, making a pilgrimage of love to his grave. His personal friends and neighbors and their children unite to reverence his name and honor his memory. Now I believe that this homage, these manifestations of living, devoted affection would be far more acceptable to his great nature than any amount of merely official distinction that could have been conferred upon him. And, furthermore, these manifestations, these rites will not cease with to-day, but as long as the Association of the First Maine Cavalry shall exist, as long as there shall be a survivor of his illustrious regiment of more than three-score battles, so long will the memory of Colonel Douty be embalmed in affection, so long will his name be spoken with reverence, and in the language of the sentiment, given, so long, at least, "his comrades will keep green the mound which covers him."

C. H. SMITH.

The responses were interesting and appropriate, and ex-Senator Hamlin's touching reference to the sufferings of our wounded President with expressions of hope for his recovery elicited the most cordial sympathy.

The meeting closed about 10 P. M., and it was universally agreed that the reunion was one of the most successful and pleasant that has occurred since the war. The committee gratefully acknowledged their obligations to the citizens, who came forward without waiting to be asked, and rendered every assistance; the soldiers are also greatly indebted to the Methodist Society for the use of their beautiful grounds, and the Cavalry Association express heartfelt thanks to Douty Post, G. A. R., for timely aid without which the arrangements could not have been so successfully carried out.

The occasion was creditable to the patriotism of the good people of Dover and Foxcroft, and worthy of the survivors of the gallant First Maine Cavalry.

What a touching bit of innocence was that when Gov. Plaisted's late law partner, Mr. Bertram L. Smith, announced through the Commercial that he had telegraphed the Governor to withdraw his nomination for Reporter of Decisions! As the Governor was in the city the day before, and only left on the morning of that day, it was a pity to resort to the extravagance of telegraphy. Somebody seems anxious to stand from under.

Mr. Wheeler, a man active in business, upright and honest in his dealings, lived, loved and respected by all; he dies, missed by a large circle of friends, but leaving a memory within the heart of the people which will be bright when the marble which marks his burial place, has become gray with age.

Saturday's Bulletins.

[7 A. M.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. The President passed a comfortable night and is thought by his physicians to be in about the same condition as yesterday morning.

[8 30 A. M.]

OFFICIAL.

The President was somewhat more restless than usual during the early part of the night, but slept better after 1 A. M. This morning his general condition does not differ materially from the same hour yesterday, except there is a slight increase in the frequency of his pulse. Pulse 104; temperature 98 6; respiration 18.

(Signed as usual.)

[12—NOON.]

The Malarious Atmosphere.

The condition of the President has not materially changed since yesterday, although he was thought this morning to be a little weaker and less animated. There seems to be a growing impression among his attendants that he is beginning to be unfavorably affected by the weather and the malarious air from the Potomac River flats. Immediately south of the Executive Mansion the rank vegetation which, fertilized by the city sewerage and stimulated by the abundant water and hot sunshine covering these flats during the summer, is now beginning to decay and since yesterday morning a faint malodorous mist has hung over the river from the water front of the Executive Mansion grounds to Long Bridge. Almost every man who has recently been engaged in the work of improving the channel of the river has been more or less sick from the malaria. Dr. Hamilton said yesterday to Col. Cook, who took him for a drive down the bank of the Potomac opposite the flats, that the President had not much chance to live in such an atmosphere as that carried by the southerly winds from those flats by the windows of his room, and that in his opinion the necessity of his removal was now urgent. One of the attending surgeons said to a friend this morning that the President's symptoms had, he thought, taken on a slight intermittent character within the past four days. Wednesday morning he seemed brighter and more animated. Thursday he was less so. Yesterday again was a good day and this morning the patient seemed weaker and more languid. The surgeons thought that the President ought not to remain here an hour longer than necessary and he would vote for speedy removal. The risk to be run in taking him away was not as great as allowing him to remain here. The patient's condition has improved a little since early morning and is now about the same as yesterday. Dr. Agnew arrived at 11 to-day and a formal consultation of a full staff of the surgeons in regard to his removal will be held this afternoon.

Cabinet Meeting.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held at 12 o'clock to-day at the State Department. Mr. Blaine presided, and all the officers were present. The session lasted an hour and a quarter, during which a discussion of the situation was held. The inquiries of several Cabinet officers failed to elicit other than the most general replies. The condition of the public business in the several departments was reviewed and it is believed the question of the necessity for some executive action, pending the President's temporary inability to act, was discussed, though the invariable response to all inquiries whether the matter was under discussion was a declination to speak upon the subject. One member to the query "Was it thought necessary to have another President" replied, "I trust it will not be necessary." Other than this he persisted in remaining entirely noncommittal.

[12 30 P. M.]

OFFICIAL.

The President's condition has not materially changed since the morning bulletin was issued. Pulse 104; temperature 98.4; respiration 18.

[2 P. M.]

UNOFFICIAL.

The President to be Removed to Long Branch.

Dr. Boynton was asked by a representative of the Associated Press what conclusion had been reached regarding the removal of the President from Washington. The Doctor replied that he understood it had been virtually decided to remove the President by rail to Long Branch, some time before Wednesday next. The proposition was now under discussion, the Doctor said, to lay a track from the Executive Mansion to Washington Monument, there to connect with a track of the Pennsylvania Railroad used for transporting stone. Further than this, the Doctor said, he could not talk, as the details are not yet arranged, nor where he will be placed on arrival there.

UNOFFICIAL.

There has been no material change in the President's condition since the noon bulletin. He seems a little stronger and better than early this morning. At the conference of surgeons, this afternoon, it was decided to move the patient away from the Executive Mansion at the earliest possible moment, and Long Branch was agreed upon as the place to which he should be taken. The details of time, route, methods, &c., were discussed, but not settled, and probably will not be until to-morrow or Monday.

A Day of Public Prayer.

In response to the request of Governor Hoyt, of Pennsylvania, that Secretary Blaine would undertake to secure the action of all the States in having Tuesday next, between the hours of ten and two, set apart by proclamation to assemble at places of worship to make public prayer for the restoration of the President to health and the discharge of his appropriate duties, the Secretary replies that proclamations are essential acts of the Supreme Executive power, that the Cabinet have not felt authorized to assume its exercise even for the object which you propose, heartily as they sympathize with it and earnestly as they desire it. But it is entirely competent for Your Excellency to communicate with the Executives of other States and promptly accomplish the desired end. To carry out the object expressed in the correspondence it is necessary that the Governors of other States shall communicate forthwith by telegraph with Gov. Hoyt at Harrisburg.

[4.30 P. M.]

UNOFFICIAL.

The President has passed the day very evenly and comfortably, and at this hour he is doing well. In addition to his usual nourishment he had this forenoon a good sized piece of toast, with the breasts of three reed birds minced upon it, and this afternoon a plate of squirrel soup. All his symptoms continue as favorable as at the last official report.

OFFICIAL.

The President has done well during the day and has taken with some relish a sufficient quantity of nutriment. The parotid swelling continues to discharge freely and to diminish in size. The wound shows no material change. Altogether his general condition exhibits some improvement over yesterday. Pulse 102; temperature 99.6; respiration 16.

(Signed as usual.)

[10 P. M.]

Blaine to Lowell.

Secretary Blaine sent the following at ten to-night:

To Lowell, Minister at London:

In the judgment of the surgeons the President has gained to-day. The change is not great, but in the right direction and against the adverse influence of a very oppressive day. His appetite is improving, and his pulse, temperature and respiration have all been better than might have been expected in such excessive heat. He will probably be removed to Long Branch early next week to escape the malarious influence of Washington climate at this season.

(Signed) BLAINE, Secretary.

[11 P. M.]

Review of the Day.

Beyond what has been stated in the official bulletins during the day there is nothing to be said regarding the President's general condition. It is conceded by all the attending surgeons that there has been a slight improvement to-day, compared with yesterday, as shown by the evening bulletin. The wound remains unchanged. It is not thought the wound can improve materially, however, until the glandular trouble has entirely subsided. The swelling of the parotid gland is gradually and satisfactorily decreasing, and the general opinion among the surgeons appears to be that a change of air will prove beneficial to this complication as well as the other difficulties from which the patient is suffering.

The all-absorbing topic to-night is the contemplated removal of the President from the White House. Last evening, after consultation with the attending surgeons, Attorney General MacVeagh telegraphed President Roberts and Vice President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, advising them that it was very probable it would be decided in the morning to remove the President to Long Branch very early next week, and requesting them to consider the best method of doing so and to arrange for it, as in their judgment was best. It was added that the removal was desired upon the bed upon which the President is now lying.

The gentlemen answered they would have a car specially arranged for the President's convenience, and would be able to place it with two other cars and an engine at the disposal of the President's physicians probably as early as Monday morning; that all proper precautions would be taken to diminish fatigue and the other annoyances of the journey whenever it was undertaken. Among other things, President Roberts said: You can assure the President we will have the best and most suitable car we can arrange which will be a combination car. We have put men at work to alter and fix it up. We will also send our best special car and baggage car for the service of those whom he may desire to have with him. This train will be at his service on notice.

In conversation on the subject of the President's removal, Mr. MacVeagh said it was at first thought it would be advisable to have a temporary railroad track run from the main line of the Pennsylvania road, so as to connect with the White House, but after fully considering the matter it was deemed impracticable to convey the President over a newly laid track, and it was therefore finally resolved to procure a large and roomy wagon, or carryall, which will accommodate the President's bed, and in such conveyance the present intention is to transfer the patient from the Executive Mansion to the car prepared for him. The bed will be carried down stairs to the south front of the house and there placed in the wagon and driven slowly and carefully to the Sixth street depot, where the wagon will be driven alongside the car into which the patient will be lifted without being removed from his bed.

Attorney General and Mrs. MacVeagh expect to leave Washington about 24 hours in advance of the President to arrange the details for his reception. Upon arriving at Long Branch the patient will be removed from the car and driven to one of the cottages adjoining the Elberon Hotel. A special train will be strictly confined to the use of the President, Mrs. Garfield and daughter Mollie, the physicians and immediate attendants. Up to this time no provision has been made for representatives of the press. Attorney General MacVeagh said to night the train would not stop at any stations except perhaps to take in water.

In a subsequent despatch to Mr. MacVeagh, President Roberts states that one of the three cars furnished for the special train will be his own special car, which will be placed at the disposal of Mrs. Garfield. He also says in order to lessen the annoyance from smoke and cinders the cars will be pushed in front of the engine and nothing but anthracite coal will be used by the locomotives; that every precaution will be taken to avoid other trains passing the special train. Trains in the opposite direction will be stopped until the special passes in order to avoid any unnecessary noise. The special train, President Roberts says, will be in Washington early on Monday morning ready to start at any time, and arrangements will be complete as fast as they can make them. It has not yet been decided when the removal shall be made, but it will probably be determined upon definitely to-morrow.

Dr. Hamilton left for New York this afternoon.

Dr. Bliss said at half-past ten that the President had passed a comfortable evening. He was not so restless as last night and nothing unfavorable had developed. His pulse at that hour was 107, or five beats higher than when the evening bulletin was issued.

[12—MIDNIGHT.]

UNOFFICIAL.

No material change has occurred in the President's condition since the last report. He is now resting quietly, the physicians are asleep and the members of the President's household have retired for the night.

Sunday's Bulletins.

UNOFFICIAL.

The President has rested well since midnight, sleeping most of the time, with no observable change in his condition. At this hour he is enjoying sound, natural slumber.

OFFICIAL.

The President vomited once late last evening and once about an hour after midnight. Notwithstanding this disturbance he slept well most of the night and this morning has taken food by the mouth without nausea and has retained it. His pulse is somewhat more frequent, but in other respects his condition is about the same as at this hour yesterday. Pulse 108; temperature 98.4; respiration 18.

Signed as usual.

[12.30 P. M.]

[OFFICIAL.]

The President's condition has not changed materially since the last bulletin, and there has been no further gastric disturbance. Pulse 108; temperature 98.4; respiration 18.

(Signed as usual.)

[6.30 P. M.]

OFFICIAL.

The President has passed a comfortable day. He has taken his food with some relish and had no return of the irritability of the stomach reported in the morning's bulletin. The parotid swelling continues to improve and is now so far reduced that the contour of his face is restored. The wound shows no material change. The rise of temperature this afternoon has been very slight, but his pulse was more frequent throughout the day than yesterday, or day before, and he showed more fatigue after the dressing. Pulse 110; temperature 99; respiration 18.

(Signed as usual.)

[7 P. M.]

The Gastric Disturbance Explained.

The morning bulletin, which mentioned that the President vomited twice during the night created considerable apprehension throughout the city, and numerous inquiries were made at the mansion as to the cause of it. The attending surgeons explained that vomiting was occasioned by a collection of phlegm in the throat and no serious consequences were expected to follow. The first disturbance was not noticed as being of any importance, but when it occurred the second time it was at first considered to be very unfavorable.

Soon after, however, the patient asked for and was given a quantity of milk porridge, which he retained without difficulty. Long after taking this he partook of some squirrel broth which he appeared to relish very much. One of the attendants upon the President reported during the morning that the glandular affection was decreasing rapidly, and that the wound was discharging a trifle more freely than it had been recently. It appears, said the gentleman, that as the discharge from the gland ceases the flow of pus from the wound increases. No noticeable change in the character of the wound has yet taken place.

Dr. Boynton expressed the opinion that the President, notwithstanding the gastric disturbance experienced during the night, was somewhat better than yesterday. It is generally conceded by those acquainted with the facts that the President will be removed between to-morrow and Wednesday, providing everything is favorable. Mr. MacVeagh said this afternoon he did not consider that the gastric trouble of last night would interfere with the removal.

Proclamation by the Governor of Vermont.

BRADFORD, Sept. 4. Gov. Farnham has issued the following proclamation: In this solemn hour, when the life of our honored Chief Magistrate of this Republic hangs trembling between time and eternity, it seems fitting that the people in every State should remember in whose hands are nations, and rulers and lives of men, and turn to God and ask for that help and comfort which we cannot receive at human hands. Therefore and in compliance with the frequently expressed wishes of the people, and my own deep sense of the propriety and necessity of so doing, I hereby appoint Thursday, the eighth day of September, instant, between the hours of ten in the forenoon and twelve noon, as a time for humiliation and prayer by the people of this State, for the recovery of President Garfield from the wound he received at the hand of the assassin.

The Route to be Taken by the Special Train.

The route over which the special train would proceed will be direct from Washington to West Philadelphia, thence to Monmouth Junction, N. J. At the latter point the train will leave the main line of the Pennsylvania road and proceed to Jamesburg, N. J., where it will take the regular Long Branch route. The train it is thought would run about forty miles per hour, and it is not thought the President would experience any disturbance from the high rate of speed, owing to a contrivance which would prevent any jarring or jostling to the patient.

A Special Car.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 4. The workmen in the Pennsylvania passengers shops refitted an Eastlake combination car here to day, and it was forwarded to Washington this evening to be used to convey the President to Long Branch.

Day of Prayer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 4. Gov. Porter has set apart Tuesday, the sixth, from ten till noon for prayer for the President.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 4. Gov. Foster appointed September sixth, between ten and twelve o'clock, for the people to join in supplication to Divine Providence to spare the life of the President.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 4. Gov. Cullen appoints Tuesday next for prayer for the President.

[10 P. M.]

Blaine to Lowell.

Secretary Blaine sent the following to-night:

To Lowell, Minister at London:

Last night the President did not rest well and twice during the night his stomach was so disturbed that he vomited. During the day it has been better and he has swallowed the usual quantity of food and retained it. His pulse, however, has been higher than for the two preceding days. The surgeons do not think he has lost ground, but he certainly has not gained since last night's despatch. At this hour, 10.30 P. M., he is quietly sleeping.

(Signed) BLAINE, Secretary.

Monday's Bulletins.

[1.30 A. M.]

The President is resting quietly. No indications of any material change since midnight.

THE INDIANS.

A Large Number of Troops Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4. A despatch from El Paso says reliable information has been received of the killing of two Americans and three Mexicans by the Apaches early in the week, at Eagle Springs. Mexican troops are pursuing.

CAMP THOMAS, Sept. 2. Pedror's band is in a canon leading into the Apache mountains and has killed everyone passing. Coroner James and son, Wm. Tuttle and son and other persons whose names are unknown are reported killed. Three companies of cavalry and a company of scouts are en route to Fort Apache.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. Later advices from Camp Thomas corroborate the reported massacre of most of Gen. Carr's command, and an Indian who witnessed the fight says all of Carr's command were killed but a few men who are trying to make their way back to Fort Apache. In the attack on Fort Apache the Indians were recklessly brave and defiant. It is reported that in an attack on the post a lieutenant and seven men were killed and probably Lieut. Gordon of the Sixth Cavalry.

TUCSON, Sept. 4. It is reported by runners that the fight continued all day of the 13th. Every hill and canon was swarming with red devils. News from the Lower San Pedro last night is that Eskemizen, chief of the band, jumped the ranche, 12 miles south of Bowie, and it was seen to burn. There are about 40 men at Bowie and but four guns. They have made fortifications of the government baled hay. Last night a number of signal fires were seen in the mountains, both north and south of Brown station which were kept in active operation for several hours. If these reports be true there is no doubt these are Mescalaros band moving out of Sonora and Chihuahua north to aid the White Mountain Indians.

OHIO.

A Strange Place for Such Work.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 4. Counterfeiting of nickels has been discovered in the penitentiary. They were circulated by a trusted convict who was allowed outside the wall.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Shot Her Husband.

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 3. The investigation into the circumstances attending the shooting of Jas. M. Jeffs by his wife, Mary A. Jeffs, develops no facts in corroboration of her statement, that the act was done in self defence. On the contrary a strong chain of circumstantial evidence is woven, all tending to prove the deed committed while her husband was endeavoring to remove household articles which the wife claimed was her property.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Brief Notes.

PARIS, Sept. 4. The result in twenty-one of the second ballots taken to-day shows that twenty Republicans and one Conservative were elected. The Monarchists lose two seats and the Bonapartists one.

LIMERICK, Sept. 4. A conflict has taken place here between the police and the public, caused by some soldiers making insulting remarks about the Pope. The police fired upon some persons who were throwing stones and fifteen were wounded, some dangerously.

LONDON, Sept. 4. Bonfires were lighted over a large portion of the north of Ireland, Saturday night, as a mark of gratitude to Gladstone for the land act.

The Union Mail Steamship Company estimates the total loss of life by the foundering of the Teuton as 320.

MAINE NEWS.

New Jerusalem Church Association.

PORTLAND, Sept. 3. The 46th annual meeting of the New Jerusalem Church Association of Maine, was held at the church in this city to-day. Miscellaneous business and the election of the following officers occupied the forenoon: President, S. F. Dike, D. D., Bath; Recording Secretary, Rev. J. K. Smith, Portland; corresponding Secretary, Rev. W. B. Hayden, Portland; Treasurer, Oliver Gerrish, Portland. In the afternoon session reports from the different societies were read. This evening there was a lecture by Rev. S. F. Dike, D. D. To-morrow there will be a sermon in the forenoon by Rev. Theodore P. Wright, of Bridgewater, Mass.; Holy Communion at 3 o'clock; sermon in the evening by Rev. Samuel Warren, of Boston.

Rowing Match.

BIDDEFORD, Sept. 3. For some time the respective friends of Lewis Towne, Lawrence, and Geo. L. Chick, of Kennebunkport, have been making efforts to bring about a rowing match between these two oarsmen. From one reason and another all efforts have been futile until recently a match for a forfeiture of $50 over a four mile course in dories, was arranged to come off at Hill's beach this afternoon. Although stormy and the water rough the referee decided that the race should be rowed. At the start Towne took the lead and maintained it for half a mile, when Chick passed and maintained his lead to the close, winning in 35½ minutes and beating Towne by one-fourth mile.

THE MONETARY CONFERENCE.

Return of Mr. Evarts.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. Ex-Secretary Evarts arrived to-day and thinks great advance toward bi-metallism has been made through the conference. An important step was gained in securing delegates from England and Germany.

THE WEATHER.

MASONIC. At the annual meeting of Piscataquis Lodge of Masons, held in their Hall in Milo, Sept. 2d, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz.: H. Hamlin, Master; C. H. Rollins, S. W.; F. B. Hassell, J. W.; W. H. Owen, Treasurer; W. E. Gould, Secretary; H. F. Daggett, S. D.; J. C. Crockett, J. D.; James Lyford, S. S.; S. H. Hobbs, J. S.; Orrin Hamlin, Tyler; C. L. Mitchell, J. W. Buker, and M. B. Foster, Financial Committee.

ACCIDENT. Saturday afternoon, while at work on Mr. Gibbs' stables on Spring street, Mr. Carlton Stetson, a carpenter, fell from a ladder a distance of some six or eight feet, injuring his elbow in such a manner that the attending physician thinks the joint will hereafter be stiff. Mr. Stetson is quite an old man, and he was considerably shaken up by the fall. About the time he met with the accident he received word from Boston that his son Walter A. Stetson was badly burned on Friday, in the fireworks factory of Masten Wells in that city.

REFORMERS' MEETING. A good-sized audience was in attendance yesterday at the meeting held by the Reform Club. Mrs. Hunt, Secretary of the Crusade, read Prov. XXII. and Rev. Mr. Palmer, of Exeter, offered prayer. At this stage of the exercises Vice President Sheedy called to the chair President-elect C. A. Page, who, in excellent and earnest words, thanked God for his redemption, the Club for the confidence they place in him, and the Crusade for their valued friendship. The speakers who followed the President, all of whom promised a hearty support to him, were as follows: Mrs. Crossman, Mrs. Pickard and Mrs. Prentiss, of the Crusade; Vice-Presidents Sheedy, Clark and McFarland, Secretary Stevens and ex-President Montgomery. The meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Mr. Palmer.

We received a very pleasant call last evening from Mr. John Taylor, of Boston, who is on his way to Calais for a brief rest.

Twenty-five bricklayers are wanted on the St. Croix cotton mill, at Milltown, N. B. See advertisement.

Persons having gold jewelry that is out of style can have it made into the latest designs at small expense at G. F. Danforth's. See ad.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL. The Eastern State School at Castine, commences its fifteenth year with an attendance of ninety-eight, thirty-five of whom are in the class entering this term. The different portions of the State are represented as follows: Waldo 21, Hancock 19, Penobscot 18, Knox 14, Washington 10, Lincoln 7, Kennebec 2, Piscataquis 2, Somerset 2, Cumberland 1.

NEW LIFE SAVING STATION. J. M. Richardson of Portland, Superintendent of the 1st Life Saving District of the United States, has just located a new life saving station. The position selected is on Hunnewell's Point near Wood Island, about a mile below the Eureka House. The land necessary for the purpose, one-half an acre, has been purchased, and the work of erecting the proper shelter will probably begin at once. A crew of eight men will be required at the station.

ECLECTIC MEDICAL COLLEGE. The Eclectic Medical College of Maine have issued their first announcement. The first lecture session will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 25th, and continue sixteen weeks. The lecture rooms are in the City Building at Lewiston, where there will be daily lectures by different members of the faculty and examinations covering important points of previous lectures. Requisites of admission are at least a thorough English education and satisfactory evidence of good moral character. Equal educational advantages are extended to women as to the other sex.

ENTERPRISES RETARDED. It is stated that the present uncertainty of the Piscataquis Railroad is preventing the development of several enterprises in the region of Moosehead Lake, and to-day we learn that the boiler of the Blanchard Slate Company having become defective the company decide not to replace the boiler for the present, chiefly in consequence of this railroad uncertainty. As soon as this matter is definitely settled the company propose to place an extensive plant of machinery at the present quarry, while the Marbelizing Company will erect mills at another place on the same belt of slate near the line of the railroad.

EXCURSION TO THE WHITE MOUNTAINS. An opportunity is to be afforded the people of Maine to make an excursion to the White Mountains. An arrangement has been made by which tickets may be obtained from Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th, good until Oct. 30th, at half rates, or one fare for the round trip, from all the principal offices on the Maine Central and Portland & Ogdensburg Railroads. The same rates will be made by the Mt. Washington Railway for parties of fifty, and possibly of twenty. The rush of travel will then be over and the hotels at Crawford Notch will take parties holding excursion tickets at $3 per day and the Kearsarge House at North Conway at $2 a day. Lower rates than these can probably be obtained.

MOOSEHEAD LAKE. On Saturday, twenty-two returning tourists came down over the B. & P. railroad from Moosehead Lake, but their places were more than filled by twenty-seven who went up on the same day. During last week the number which went to and came from the Lake was something over a hundred each way. One day last week the guests at the Kineo House numbered two hundred and eighty, while there were eighty at the Lake House, Greenville. The tide of pleasure travel to this magnificent summer resort is increasing yearly, as its reputation becomes more widely extended. But for the great enlargement of the Kineo House the present year the house could not have begun to accommodate those who have visited it.

THE MISHAPS OF A CALAIS MAN. The Portland Press says "George Hutchins, a Calais sailmaker, came to Portland Saturday week in search of work. He has not found it, but succeeded in making work for others. Thursday he drank freely and in the evening stumbled on and off Burnham's wharf, missing the water, striking a boat, and badly bruising his head. He was rescued from his uncomfortable position by Thomas Smith, night watchman for the Boston boats. This is the fifth man Mr. Smith has pulled out of the dock within a short time. Hutchins on his arrival at the station was bleeding freely from the cuts on his head, and was anything but a pleasant object to contemplate. His injuries are of a trivial character."

OBITUARY. Our mortuary columns this morning contain notices of the deaths of Simon and Wm. H. Nowell, the only surviving sons of the late General Simon Nowell, of this city, whose deaths occurred within four days of each other. The younger, Wm. H., left this city many years ago, and will not be so well remembered as will the older, Simon, who until within a few years resided at the old Nowell place, and dispensed milk to his customers from what is now known as Maplewood Farm. He was a man quiet and unassuming in his manner, highly respected by all who knew him, and so strictly attentive to business that for twenty years he made his daily rounds to his customers without losing a single trip. That the two surviving sons, living distant from each other, should have died so nearly together, is a singular coincidence.

THE ST. CROIX COTTON MILL. The St. John News says: The total capital of the St. Croix Cotton Mill Company is $500,000. Of this amount $100,000 is subscribed by capitalists of St. Stephens and Calais; the balance is furnished by the Providence stockholders who visit the grounds every month to see how matters are progressing. A ten per cent. cash deposit of $50,000, $35,000 of which came from Providence, is made every month. The Dexter Cotton Mills, in which the American gentlemen are interested, turn out articles of peculiar excellence, which it is calculated can be made at Milltown a shade less in price. These articles are bleached and unbleached cotton, shirtings and prints of all kinds. In this connection it should be observed that these kind of goods, supposed to be made, and sold in the Dominion for a yard in width, are only thirty-four inches. The machinery for the St. Croix Cotton Mill is being made with a view to having all the goods made thirty-six inches. The directors think with this giving better measurement and with selling the goods at the same rate as now sold at Providence, they ought to secure a great market, and one that will presently require the construction, adjoining their mill, of another mill of exactly the same size.

The Sentinel says that Mr. Alonzo Adams, who has been engaged in running sardines from Deer Island to Eastport in a sail boat, was drowned at the former place on Monday morning, Aug. 29th. Mr. Adams was in the act of hoisting his sail, when the halyards parted and he fell backwards into the water.

AMUSEMENTS.

Corinne Merrie Makers.

We are pleased to announce the engagement for Friday and Saturday next, of the "Corinne Merrie Makers," an operatic organization of thirty adult artists, headed by the tiny lyric star, Little Corinne, aptly styled the "Miniature Patti." Friday evening, will be presented the popular "Olivette," with Corinne in the title role. For the Saturday matinee, the operatic burlesque "The Magic Slipper" will be given, in which Corinne and company will introduce new specialties, and the Shetland ponies and gorgeous chariot will appear on the stage. For the final performance on Saturday evening, Audran's latest opera, "The Mascot" is announced with Corinne as "Bettina." "The Mascot" has been the great operatic success of the spring and summer season in New York and Boston, and there will be a great desire to hear it in Bangor. The operas will be mounted and costumed in the best possible manner, and we anticipate a most prosperous engagement for the "Merrie Makers." Reserved seats for either Friday or Saturday evening may be obtained at D. Bughee & Co.'s on Wednesday morning.

Victoria Loftus Company.

The original Victoria Loftus troupe of British Blondes and sensational burlesque artists, is announced to appear in Norombega Hall on next Monday evening. The company, which is a very large one, includes, among others, the following names: the Victorellis, the celebrated acrobats and gymnasts; Miss Annie Braddon, vocalist; Harris and Wood, Morton and Mack, song and dance men; Chas. Glidden, banjo soloist; Senator Benedict; Miss Ophelia Starr, Miss Ada Storms, J. H. Cook, baritone, Julia Wilson and Sadie Ross, duet artists, and numerous others; also a brass band and orchestra. We are assured by the Manager that no objectionable feature whatever will be allowed, his aim being to give a refined programme of male and female minstrelsy and specialty acts. Seats may be secured at Bughee's four days in advance.

Notes.

John A. Stevens, the distinguished young actor, and his dramatic company will shortly appear in his own drama, "Passion Slave." Mr. Stevens is proprietor of the Windsor Theatre, New York, and the new Windsor Theatre, Boston.

Sympathy for the President.

The following is a copy of the telegram sent by the veterans at Maranocook, Sept. 1st:

LAKE MARANOCOOK, Sept. 1, 1881.

To Hon. James G. Blaine, Secretary of State, Washington, D. C.

We, the soldiers and sailors of Maine, in reunion assembled, send our most sincere sympathy and condolence to our late comrade in arms, President Garfield, and to his family, in their deep affliction, and trust that the renewed hope that our honored and beloved President may be restored to health shall grow brighter hourly until at no distant day he shall stand once more in the full strength and glory of his noble manhood.

TO ACCOMMODATE THE PUBLIC.

The proprietors of that immensely popular remedy, Kidney-Wort, in recognition of the claims of the public which has so liberally patronized them, have prepared a liquid preparation of that remedy for the special accommodation of those who from any reason dislike to prepare it for themselves. It is very concentrated and, as the dose is small, it is more easily taken by many. It has the same effectual action in all diseases of the kidneys, liver or bowels. Home and Farm.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

PROGRESS OF THE ARLBERG TUNNEL.

The work of boring the Arlberg tunnel, which is to connect Switzerland with Austria is proceeding very satisfactorily, and at a speed which affords a striking illustration of the improvements that have lately been effected, in the art of mountain tunnelling. The Mont Cenis tunnel was bored at the rate of 1,113 metres a year, the St. Gothard at the rate of 1,679 metres, and the Arlberg is expected to be pierced at the rate of 2,100 metres. The Arlberg engineers are also profiting by the experiences of their predecessors in the matter of cost, for while the outlay on the Mont Cenis tunnel was £400 per running metre, and has been hitherto on the St. Gothard £220, the expense of making the Arlberg will not exceed £150 the metre. In this regard, however, the tunnel last named benefits by its shortness, since the longer the tunnel, other things being equal, the greater is its relative cost. An interesting experiment is being made in the Arlberg tunnel, with a new sort of perforator. As is well known, the perforators used in the Mont Cenis and St. Gothard tunnels consisted of a series of chisels (not diamond-pointed as have sometimes been stated) driven with a quick hammer-like action by compressed air, the machines for the production of which were actuated by turbines at the two ends of the tunnel. This system is the one in use on the eastern or Austrian side of the Arlberg. The chisels cover a space of seven square metres, and make 20 to 25 holes at one time, each from 1½ to 2 metres deep. These are then filled with dynamite and the mine exploded. Every blast lengthens the drift by about 1½ metres. The perforators move forward on wheels, and the air, compressed to a pressure of five atmospheres, is supplied through flexible tubes. On the west side drills are employed, of a diameter of 70 millimetres, to which by means of a water pressure of from 60 to 100 atmospheres a rotary movement is communicated. Six or eight of these drills are as effective as 20 to 25 of the atmospheric perforator, and the holes they make are so much wider that equal results are produced with lighter charges of dynamite.

But the greater difficulty in Alpine tunnelling consists less in quarrying out a passage than in getting rid of rubbish. After every blast, the outcome of it, in the shape of loose material, must be removed before boring operations can be resumed; and when an atmosphere alre ady close and impure is still further fouled by the smoke of an explosion the labor of removal becomes dangerous as well as difficult. Fatal accidents sometimes happen. The leading miners in the Arlberg tunnel, when engaged in this work, cover their mouths and nostrils with sponges which have been steeped in vinegar, an expedient which has been found singularly efficacious in neutralizing the bad effects of the poisonous air they are often compelled to breathe. The important part which the removal of the rubbish plays in these undertakings is shown in the fact that of the five years required for the making of the Arlberg tunnel two and a half will be occupied in actual boring and excavating, and two and a half in carrying away loose material. Since June, 1880, when the work first began, the gallery on the east side has been driven 1,010 metres, that on the west 710 —London Times, August 3.

WM. H. KITTREDGE

Nearly Dead and One Bottle cured him.

WESTFIELD, Mass., March 30, 1881.

J. W. KITTREDGE, Agent: Elixir of Life Root

DEAR SIR—Having suffered intensely for four years with disease of the kidneys, after having during that time tried various remedies in vain for obtaining relief, I was induced to try a bottle of your ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT, and it affords me pleasure to say that one bottle of it completely cured me. I recommend it as the only valuable and certain cure for kidney trouble I have ever known. I would say that before taking your medicine I had been so weak that I was about to give up work. Hoping that others who have suffered like myself may be so fortunate as to try your valuable medicine,

Truly Yours, T. S. McMAIN.
